From Our Kitchen to Yours

Barbeque Chicken
(Serves 6 to 8)

3 lb chicken
1 cup spicy or bold barbecue sauce
3 cups prepared coleslaw
6 corn on the cob
1 cup fresh pineapple wedges
2 limes, cut into quarters
6 large pickles
1 large bag potato chips

Cut chicken into pieces and marinate in barbecue sauce for at least two hours or overnight. Remove chicken from marinade and cook on pre-heated barbecue set at medium heat. Turn chicken frequently and cook until meat thermometer registers 165°F when inserted into thickest part of chicken pieces. Brush with additional sauce just before serving. When chicken is almost cooked; cook corn on the barbecue for 10 minutes, turn frequently and spread with softened butter before serving. Cook pineapple wedges on barbecue for the final few minutes. Serve chicken with barbecued pineapple wedges, fresh lime wedges, coleslaw, corn, pickles, and chips.

Origins: Black Pepper

Salt's partner-in-crime, Black Pepper, originated in India and has been used to enhance flavors in Indian cooking since 2 BC. At the time, Black Pepper was so valuable and rare that it was called "black gold" and treated as currency in countries like Greece. Derived from the pepper plant, which grew mostly in South and South East Asia, Black Pepper could only be traded and introduced to countries that could reach India's Malabar region by sea and land. Once the Roman Empire began to expand sea trade and shorter routes to India could be reached, Black Pepper became a popular ingredient in dishes all over the world.

Today, we simply shake or grind Black Pepper into our cooking without truly appreciating how valuable its extra flavor was to cooking practices in ancient times. Try and include it on your next steak, salad, pasta, or soup and see why people made such a fuss about it years ago!

North Shore Farms has an amazing selection of herbs, spices, nuts, seeds, and other valuable ingredients that can enrich your cooking! Sign up for the mailing list on our website for recipe ideas in our weekly circular and find out how you can bring out the extra flavor in your cooking!

Shaking Up The Salad Routine

Eating salad doesn't have to feel like an order from your parents. In addition to all the vitamins, nutrients, and digestive benefits that come with leafy greens, salads open up many possibilities for experimentation as you can combine as many ingredients, colors, and flavors as you like.

Try these fun combinations:

- Add red onions, roasted almonds, walnuts, dates, red pepper flakes, and a squeeze of lemon juice to a bed of spinach leaves
- Mix red peppers, green peppers, olive oil, seashell pasta, black olives, and sliced pepperoni sausage with Italian-style salad dressing and Parmesan cheese sprinkled on top
- Crush crunchy Asian noodles into your salad with sesame seeds, almonds, and soy sauce for a touch of Asia

Check out some of the exciting homemade salads that we have in our Deli and Prepared Food department! Made from scratch at each of our locations, our salads are perfect as a meal to go or as an addition to your family dinner table.
